Morris, life is hell. With her arch nemesis, Lindsay Fischer, continuous bullying, the newfound feeling her best friend, Alec Griswald, had confessed to her, and the wicked feud between her divorced parents, she seems to be at the end of her rope. So when a mysterious shadow creature enters her dreams, wanting to take her to a magical place where anything she can dream of can come true, it seems too good to be true. The only thing that J.J. didn't expect was to become highly addictive to the Land of Dreams. She starts to spend more and more nights in the magical place, becoming hooked. At least, until fifteen-year-old Dharma Trouster, an albino hippie, who had given herself up to the Land of Dreams in the mid 70s, tells her the dark, twisted revelations of the magical world. That it was a place of horror and trapped souls. But J.J.'s life is a total disaster and she's desperate to get out of it. But there is a price to pay in order to stay in the Land of Dreams. A price that may be too great for J.J. to pay. (less).
